

THE Religious World.

With the increase of population in the valley, it is gratifying to all interested in religious work to mark the parallel strides in church extension. No town of any size is destitute in facilities to worship, and where church edifices have not existed, moneyed men and leading religious workers in the valley, have aided the missionary in securing a religious home for the people. This work has been silently pursued during the last ten years, thousands of dollars have been contributed, and today the missionary spirit in our churches is as active as ever.

In Peckville, two churches are well under way, the one a new Presbyterian church, and the other a re-modeling and enlarging of the Methodist Episcopal church. The Presbyterians of this town have for years gone to Olyphant to worship, but during the summer resolved to erect a church in Peckville, on Main avenue. The plans were prepared by Architect Duckworth, of this city; the contract was awarded to Ward & Son, of Taylor. The building, when completed, will cost about $8,000. It is a frame structure with a commodious basement, divided into rooms where social can be conveniently held. The main audience room has a seating capacity of over 300, and in the rear are Sunday school rooms. The whole building is 70 feet long by 42 broad. The membership is about fifty, and they expect to be in their new home about Sept. 1.

ENLARGING THE HOUSE.

The Methodist Episcopal of Peckville found their old church too small, and at an expense of $8,000 to $9,000, they are making it more spacious to the eye and better adapted to the growing needs of the town. The plans were executed by E. D. Price, of Philadelphia, and the contract awarded to E. A. Barber, Peckville.

The new story was torn from under the old building, which was then moved and moved to the rear of the lot. In front of this new building has been erected, which is the main audience room and capable of seating 450. Between this and the old building are folding doors which can be thrown open and 450 more can see the platform and join in the singing. The cost for the wood work is $3,500. The foundation was separate and cost $600. Windows and pews will cost about $1,800. The floor of the new part is pit in the southwest corner in front of the orchestra platform.

The old building is designed for Sunday school, and a new building is being erected, but can be used for public worship when occasion demands. Rev. F. P. Doty is pastor, who has done very good work in this town during his stay there. He expects to lead his charge to the new edifice about Oct. 1.

GROWN AND MULTIPLIED.

The German Methodist Episcopal church began work in our city in 1853, when Rev. F. W. Flocke was sent here as a missionary. His trials were many, but after five months of activity he organized a church with fifteen members. The newly organized society bought the old frame building of the First Methodist Episcopal church for $100, which they removed to the corner of Adams avenue and Vine street. This was replaced in 1872 by the fine brick church which adorns the old site and is known as the First German Methodist Episcopal church.

This organization has not lived for a year. In 1889 some of the active members began work on the South Side. A church was erected at a cost of $8,000, which was paid for, and today an aggressive, self-sustaining society known as the Second German Methodist Episcopal church is the result of this activity. Another missionary enterprise is conducted by this church in Petersburg, where they have erected a chapel that has cost them $3,000. This mission is now under the fostering care of the parent church, and Rev. G. Hauser goes there once a week to conduct services, but the time is not far distant when this second offspring of the First church will assume independence.

MISSIONARY WORK.

"Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth," is the principle that regulates missionary activity in many of our churches in town. Many individuals prominent in Christian work at home, send to foreign countries liberal contributions to aid the propagation of the Gospel of Peace. These men send no trumpet before them, and their liberality is only known to the pastor of the church and a few others, and their imperative command is that their names be not published. It would not be difficult to name a score of men who maintain Bible readers or give annually a scholarship to some college at home or abroad, by which freedom or health are educated and sent forth as missionaries. These benefactors are never recorded in living monuments of flesh and blood, which become tongues of fire, whose work is recorded in heaven, and shall be known by the "well done thou good and faithful servant" of the Master.

WORK IN THE SUBURBS.

In Dunmore the Penn Avenue Baptist church has planted a mission which has this year declared itself independent. This mission was organized during the ministry of Rev. Dr. Spencer, about five years ago. A church building was erected at a cost of $4,000, the bulk of which was paid by the mother church. There are sixty-three resident members in this church, and a Sunday school averaging about 100 scholars. The pastor, Rev. A. O'Neil, is an earnest missionary and it is to be expected that the society, having come to its majority, will manifest renewed life and energy.

The St. Luke's church has a mission chapel in this suburb that is in a flourishing state. It is now in charge of Rev. W. Urban, who is Rev. Rogers Lavelle's assistant.

On the West Side a mission chapel was erected twenty years ago on Galtfield avenue by the First Welsh Baptist church. William C. Jones is superintendent, having a Sunday school averaging eighty members. The property is valued at $3,000. This church also has a mission station in Bellevue, where about sixty scholars meet every Sunday. The church has erected a chapel on a lot belonging to the Dalawans, Lackawanna and Western company.

The Jackson street Baptist church conducts a mission station in Conditment. William Akon is superintendent, who reports an average attendance of about seventy. Rev. D. C. Hughes, D. D., conducts a prayer meeting here once a week.

The Plymouth Congregational church conducts a mission school on Sherman avenue, which has an enrolled membership of 175. The school was founded by the First Presbyterian church, but has been for the past eleven years cared for by the Plymouth church. Miss Della F. Evans is in charge and has a very flourishing Christian Endeavor society which meets every Wednesday evening.

In Dutch Gap, the Providence Welsh Congregational church, has founded a mission school. It has only been in existence five months and meets every Sunday afternoon in Alexander hall, where about twenty scholars attend. Rev. R. S. Jones, D. D., has the work in charge and preaches there occasionally.

IN THE CITY.

The Second Presbyterian church conducted a volunteer mission on corner of Sixth street and Lackawanna avenue. It was started in June, 1893, and by today grown into a church under the charge of Rev. R. S. Jones, D. D. This work was conducted by Rev. E. L. Miller, but it grew so rapidly that the presence of a missionary was necessary and last May the present pastor was called, who has done very good work in this Park Place Lutheran mission organization.

THE HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH.

The Holy Trinity Lutheran church organized a Sunday school in North End July, 1893. This has, by today, grown into a church under the charge of Rev. R. S. Jones, D. D. This work was conducted by Rev. E. L. Miller, but it grew so rapidly that the presence of a missionary was necessary and last May the present pastor was called, who has done very good work in this Park Place Lutheran mission organization.

FACTS CONCERNING A DELIGHTFUL NORTHEASTERN PENNSYLVANIA TOWN.

UNEQUALED AS A SUMMER RESORT

The Attractions of the charming County Seat of Susquehanna—Pure Air and Water, Pleasing Scenery Among the Many Enjoyable Features in the Town Upon the Hills Whose Inhabitants Never Grow Old.

Special to the Scranton Tribune.

UNTIL within a few years the attractions of this charming village on the hills have never been appreciated by the people of Montrose. Born and reared among delightful surroundings, the average resident looks with apparent indifference upon nature's gorgeous panorama and fails to note the beautiful effects in form and color that inspire the artist and poet to masterly efforts. The native finds little to interest him at this season in the rolling fields of green fringed with patches of woodland that meet the eye at every hand; but the visitor whose life perhaps may have been spent within the stifling limits of metropolitan cities, where the multitudes sweeter in midsummer, become wildly enthusiastic over the beautiful scenery and pure air and water of Susquehanna's capital. It is seldom that a summer visitor to Montrose will ever pass a vacation elsewhere. Many of the regular visitors have been spending the heated months here for the last quarter of a century.

James D. Smilie, the well known artist, after visiting nearly every country upon the globe, returned to Montrose to reside, and is one of the leading citizens in all schemes for improvement and public good. In a handsome residence commanding a good view of the western hills, Smilie passes the summer months with his family, his friends and his artistic inspirations for some of his finest etchings from the surrounding country where charming subjects appear in endless variety.

OTHER SUMMER GUESTS.

Many Philadelphians are regular summer residents of Montrose, returning to the city in October. Others have purchased homes here and reside in town the year around.

The people of the town have recently awakened from the slumber of the winter months of past years and now seem to be fully alive to the many attractions of the place as a summer resort. Through the efforts of Artist Smilie and many other enterprising citizens, a village improvement society was organized two or three years ago, and the good fruits of the enterprise are evident in the handsome grass plots along the avenues; the clean streets and neatly kept lawns in front of private residences. The spirit of improvement fostered by the society has made the town one of the most attractive of any of its class in the state.

BRASSES AND BRONZES OF THE HINDOOS.

The brass and bronze trade is kept alive by the religious customs of the Hindoos, who are not allowed to use wooden and earthenware vessels freely, and brass and bronze are to them as important as glass and china to the westerns. Among the Hindoo utensils are brass, copper or bronze, and it is the custom to present the female portion of a Hindoo family with a valuable batterie de cuisine, made either of brass or copper, and a still existing Hindoo ceremony is that of carrying the utensils in a procession to the temple.

The result of this custom is that almost all the plates, trays, bowls, tin crackers, and all brass and copper utensils are most beautifully ornamented, and there are lovely combinations of brass and copper, and silver and copper. All Hindoo lamps are made of brass. The Hindoo women used to have little brass caskets covered with ornamental designs, which were manufactured in Malabar, in which they kept their jewels, but these are fast being replaced by the vulgar English japanned dispatch box. At Sivaganga a beautiful but seldom patronized brass trade exists, which makes toys and little brass representations of animals, lizards, frogs, etc.—Nineteenth Century.

OUR SYSTEM OF NOTATION.

Some system of notation has been used since time out of memory. The first record we have of a flat surface written with a vocal scale by the Hindus, who used beads, pebbles, beans and the like. Even now the Chinese do their calculating with little stones or beads strung on wires, in a frame. The Romans first used vertical lines—I, II, III, etc.—to express numbers. The Arabic figures, which are commonly used at the present time, are of much earlier date. The Arabic system is chiefly valuable on account of the great convenience it affords by giving a figure a value, according to the place it occupies in the line. By this system the most enormous sums can be expressed by the ten little characters which form the numerical alphabet.—St. Louis Republic.

AT THE PRIVATE MUSICALS.

The Spokesman—Ladies and gentlemen, the next number on the programme is a vocal solo by Mrs. Brown, who will sing "I Found No Peace," accompanied by Mrs. Brown.

An Auditor—Brown evidently married for self protection.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

The man who keeps his stomach in first-class condition all the time is the only man who stands a chance of success in life. For all disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys the genuine Carlsbad Sprudell Salt is without equal. It is especially beneficial for chronic constipation, gouty and rheumatic affections, diabetes, etc. Best results obtained when outdoor exercise can be had. Be sure to obtain the genuine article, which has the seal of the city of Carlsbad and the signature of "Eisner & Mendelson Co., Agents, New York," on every bottle.

PROGRESSIVE JOURNALISTS.

Montrose supports three excellent weekly journals. The Independent Republican, one of the oldest and best known Republican weeklies in the state, is published by James P. Taylor, a newspaper man from boyhood and a staunch advocate of Republicanism. The Democrat, an aggressive advocate of principles of the free trade party, is conducted by W. C. Crook, who though still a young man has made the paper a financial as well as a journalistic success. The Sentinel, a paper advocating prohibition, is ably edited by Stephen J. Northrup.

While giving flattering patronage to home journals, which is perfectly proper, the people of Montrose also keep well informed upon current events through the daily press and their excellent judgment in the matter of selecting good reading is evidenced by the fact that THE SCRANTON TRIBUNE is the favorite journal of the majority.

Although sustaining a few industries, Montrose is not favorably situated for manufacturing enterprises and will probably never be celebrated upon account of extensive ventures of the kind; but as a summer resort of an all year home town, it possesses attractions in the way of healthful surroundings and social purity that are not excelled.

PARASOLS THAT FIND FAVOR.

White Lace Ones Are Again Carried, and Pink Chiffon Is Very Stylish.

With the parasol one may make or mar her costume. To select it so as to give the finishing touch of beauty to a faultless array requires delicate consideration, but can be satisfactorily accomplished now that the most beautiful adjunct to dress is presented in such variety of coloring and garniture.

Some of the newest parasols are in moire, with either jet or cream gimp carried up each rib and a vandyke pattern between each. Others are composed of striped chiffon, with gimp trimmings. These are carried up to match special costumes. There are fascinating arrangements of lace and silk, chiffon and moire and also plain moire and silk.

Among handsome French parasols is numbered one of black silk, with embroidered galon and top star. Each rib is hidden under tapering bouillottes, terminating with corker folds in gauze like the double row round the edge, outlined with narrow ribbon. A gauze rosette bow encircles the handle. A second, in plain silk, is decorated with triangles of lace brightened with gold thread and has a Japanese stick, enamelled on the flat handle and intertwined with a chenille cord and tassels. A third, a simple but very stylish example, is in checked silk, with a bamboo handle.

In regard to New York fashions in parasols Harper's Bazaar says: White or pink parasols are most seen in the afternoon in open carriages in the park. Those of white are usually of chiffon gathered very full on white silk and bordered with puffs and ruffles of the same or of lace. There are also many with pink or yellow chiffon flounces while all else is white, even the enamelled white stick with ivory or pearl handle.

White lace parasols are again carried in point d'acier mounted plainly over a white silk foundation which is smaller than the lace cover and perhaps cut in star shape or in eccentric points. Pink parasols are of chiffon in fluff puffs and full ruffles, with sometimes choix or bows of black on the ferrule and handle.

For morning, coaching and general use checked taffeta and bayadere striped silk parasols are most used. Black and white gimp, with or without ruffles, is very elegant in checks or bows, is very stylish. Moire taffeta is preferred to the heavy moire used for parasols at the beginning of the season. Chino silks that match the waist worn with light wool dresses are among the newest imported parasol covers.

FRENCH PARASOLS.

A second, in plain silk, is decorated with triangles of lace brightened with gold thread and has a Japanese stick, enamelled on the flat handle and intertwined with a chenille cord and tassels. A third, a simple but very stylish example, is in checked silk, with a bamboo handle.

IN BEAUTEOUS GARD.

Just now Montrose may be seen to good advantage. As the hum of the locust proclaims midsummer days and the whistle of the quail is heard near fields of ripened grain the delights of this mountain resort are fully appreciated by visitors from abroad, and the city boarder predominates. The two summer hotels are well filled with guests at present, and during the next few weeks will be crowded to their utmost capacity. Numerous visitors find accommodations in private families in town and at farm houses in this vicinity, while others are entertained by friends.

Among the guests at Mrs. Lathrop's mansion are the oldest summer residents in the town, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Reed, Miss Heyl, Mrs. Horn, Miss Horn, and Mrs. G. L. Lentz, Mrs. Horace Burt and family, Mrs. Huston, Miss Halsey, Mr. W. D. Frishum, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Wickams and Miss Wickams, of New York. The list of guests at "Rosemont Cottage," another first-class house owned by Charles Sawyer, includes Rev. and Mrs. L. P. Fugant, Mr. John Gilbert, and Mrs. W. W. Wymant, Miss Wynant, of New York; Mrs. Temple, Miss Temple and Dr. William Wright, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Anna Cole, of Baltimore, Md.; Captain B. J. Cronwell, United States Army, of the 10th Cavalry, of the Miseses, of Germantown.

Among other visitors to the town who are being entertained by friends are Rev. H. H. Jesup and family of Beirut, Syria, and Mrs. W. H. Woodin of Berwick, who are at Judge Jesup's; Miss Phoebe Pearce of Albany, N. Y.; who is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. D. S. Richards, of New York; artists, Mrs. W. S. Daniels of Albion, N. Y., guest of her sister, Mrs. J. R. Raynsford; Prof. Miller and family of Shenandoah, of Germantown.

Mrs. Richards, wife of Lieutenant Benjamin Richards, U. S. N., Miss Lily Richards and Mrs. Cynthia Richards and Dr. Theodore Richards, occupy a cozy summer cottage on Lake avenue.

John Lyons, journalist, of Boston, regular contributor to Life, Judge, and other well known humorous papers, is spending the summer in town with his uncle, George Lyons, who is also a writer of humorous paragraphs.

If the prospective summer boarder desires hotel entertainment rather than that of the many excellent private establishments, the Tarbell House and the Montrose House offer excellent accommodations at rates based upon the quality of the service desired. Both are located on the lake and are possessed of cuisine and beverages in advance of the usual country hotel.
